While they haven't said much about it, Republican leaders are privately disturbed over the gradual growth of Democratic strength in Newton which appears to be slowly changing from a Republican stronghold to a twoparty city in State politics.

That probably will not manifest itself in this year's non-partisan municipal election, but it is likely to reflect itself in future State elections, and shrewd GOP politicos ton; Treasurer, Roland F. change, according to Alderman V. Stoddard Bigelow, were that there should be a street running from one boundary of the city to the other and that there was confusion about reaching the industrial center, since what appears to be the same road actually has three names along various sections.

Although there is no break in the highway, Centre street ends as it passes under the Worcester turnpike. The roadway is then Winchester street until it reaches a traffic island, and Needham street-carrying the bulk of traffic-branches off at an angle.

Bigelow, who was presenting a minority report opposed to the favorable action on the change voted by the public works committee, said the city "should retain the historic names our streets have." The use of the name Needham, he declared,

"helps localize the street." Edwin A. Terkelsen, chairman of the public works committee, also expressed his objection. He said he found that those who opposed the move when it was first considered were still against it. Changing the name, he stated, would not make any real difference in the ease of locating the streets, but the problem could be overcome by placing street signs at key spots

It Began In America

The observance of Mother's Day, on the second Sunday of each May, is a beautiful American custom that has spread around most of the world. It began in Philadelphia in 1907, the inspired idea of a devoted woman who, though not a mother herself, revered the memory of her own.

Happy is the family with Mother in its midst, to honor in the small, blithesome ways that can make her special "day" an excitingly joyous one. For those of us who are not blessed by her actual presence, there is the white carnation to be worn in memory, the memory best loved, and most sacred.

Security

Security comes in a good many different forms, most of them desirable. There's an odd thing about security, though. It is the product of risk yet risk is the opposite of security.

In searching for security, don't go to people who are looking for the same thing. Go to those who are risk-takers, not security-seekers. And this applies regardless of what kind of security we hope to find.

To start every business people had to put their resources on the line, their ideas, energy, time and money. There is never a "sure thing." Government looks to risktaking private enterprises and the income they create for most of its funds.

We may not be conscious of it, but wherever we seek personal or economic security, we expect it to be provided by people who are willing to take risks, and they seldom let us down.

Political Overtones

Some of Lieutenant Governor Sumner G. Whittier's supporters appear to be disturbed that an attempt may be made next year to detour Whittier from political road he has been travelling with his compass set on the Governorship. Actually, there seems to be no real basis for their Should Governor Herter yield to persuasion and pressure from President Eisenhower and consent to stand for reelection for a third term, Whittier would be confronted with the necessity of either running again for Lieutenant Governor or shifting his objective to Congress.

Except for the intervention of the President himself and an appeal that he needs Herter on the ballot to strengthen his chances in Massachusetts, there is not much likelihood of any organized effort to dissuade Whittier from seeking the Governor's chair.

What conceivably might happen is that Whittier and Republican House Leader Charles Gibbons would be allowed to battle it out for the gubernatorial endorsement at the GOP State convention and that the loser would then challenge freshman Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald. Both Whittier and Gibbons reside in Macdonald's district. The Republican party in Massachusetts is fortunate to have two men coming along of the stature, ability and personal color of Whittier and Gibbons.

But one of the prices the GOP may have to pay for having two men of their standing a step below the gubernatorial level is that there is likely to be some conflict in their political ambitions.

Whittier and Gibbons both were prospective candidates for Governor in 1952. Gibbons might well have carried the gubernatorial banner in the State instead of Herter, if the late Robert A. Taft had been the Presidential nominee, for he was one of the Taft stalwarts in Massachusetts.

Lieutenant Governor Whittier is in a somewhat better campaign position than Gibbons who is tied to the State House much of the year by his duties as the Republican House leader.

The Republican picture in Massachusetts will not really be clarified for another year until Governor Herter's plans are

It is fairly safe to state that Mr. Herter at this time has no intention of waging a third gubernatorial campaign

What his attitude would be if President Eisenhower were to make a strong request to him to do so is difficult to foretell, but the impression right now is that it would have to be a very strong one in order to dissuade the Governor from retiring from the office he now holds.

If Herter doesn't run, it probably will simply be a case of whether Whittier or Gibbons can muster the greatest delegate support in their own party.

Democratic leaders in the Massachusetts House of Representatives have been apprehensive for some time that the bitter feeling between certain of their party members might flare from verbal exchanges into actual fist fights.

That very nearly happened this week when sharp-tongued Representative John F. Zamparelli of Medford accused Representative John F. Tynan of South Boston of walking from the House chamber "with his tail between his legs," after advocating the passage of a budget allowance for the office of Republican House Leader Charles Gibbons.

The angry Tynan bounded back into the chamber and up to the microphone where Zamparelli was speaking. Only the intervention of other members prevented the two Democratic legislators from coming to blows.

Even though any physical clash was averted on that occasion, State House observers are wondering what will happen, when the House goes into the final weeks before prorogation, when tempers invariably become frayed under the strain of the long sessions that usually extend into the night.

This is not a case of strong feeling between legislators of opposing political parties. It is strictly a feud among Democratic lawmakers, with the Republicans cast in the role of spectators, although one of the allegations of the insurgents headed by Zamparelli apparently is that certain of the Democratic leaders are too friendly with the Republican chieftains.

Zamparelli's persistent attacks upon his own party leaders, which a fortnight ago provoked one of his colleagues into inviting him out ide, obviously stem from personal animosity. He and Speaker Michael F. Skerry come from the same city of Medford and Zamparelli has passed up no opportunity to embarrass Skerry.

Some of the older House members besome of the older House members be-lieve that the quiet-mannered, soft-spoken Slavery, has been to lenion while world full of music and drama from Skerry has been too lenient while presiding over the sessions of the lower legislative chamber and has allowed too much latitude in debate, even when he himself was being assailed.

There may be some basis for that opinion, for Skerry obviously has been reluctant to exercise the broad powers he possesses to silence a member indulging in personal attacks. It is quite possible in personal attacks. It is quite possible Pupils in the classrom scene are:

There may be issues which arouse stronger feeling that the fluoridation of collection is being handled by drinking water, but this observer would Betty Farina, Lucy Marini, and

This is a highly technical and scientific matter on which politicians orate at length, creating a water of water and controlled the politicians or the difficulties associated with advancing years. length, creating a welter of confusion and bewilderment and arousing uncertainty as to whether they're defending a mass murder plot.

Claims were made in the State Senate this week that although the chemical treatment of water through fluoridation may strengthen the teeth of children and eliminate cavities, it causes heart trouble and other ills for older persons.

One Senator demanded to know what good it is to have sound teeth if you die in the process of getting them.

A second Solon declared that if some people want to drink poison in their water, they should buy it themselves and mix their own potions. A third Senator read a statement from an official in another State branding fluoridation as the greatest mass murder plot yet devised by the human mind.

State Senator Evans of Wakefield reminded his colleagues that they were Hurley. talking about a program that has been approved by the State and national public health departments and by medical and dental societies.

One certain method for becoming completely confused on fluoridation is to sit in at a political row on the matter.

RANDOM CLIPPINGS

A dean at New York University last week blamed school teachers for the fact that present-day boys and girls are atro-ciously poor spellers.' Dean Thomas C. Pollack, who is also a professor of English, declared that college professors say the high school teachers are to blame for the fact that their pupils can't spell. He said Bessom, Pauline Bilezikian, Marthe high school teachers point to the clementary schools and that the elemen-Judith Boudreau, Mary Lee Cartary teacher "says it's the fault of the home or society or something." The dean himself maintained that newer teaching practices and ultra-progressive methods are targely responsible.

HAMMOND POND PARK Editor, Newton Graphic:

For at least 50 years, the Metropolitan District Commission held title to the area on both sides of Hammond Pond Parkway at its junction with Route 9. Even after it sold the land on Route 9 where the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center is built, it retained the land along the parkway to the west of the pond. This land is in its natural state and contains some high out-croppings of ledge and pudding-stone, and is covered with growing trees. It is in many ways ideally suited to use for park purposes. In April 1948, however, a tract of over 12 acres, running from Route 9 back along the west side of the parkway was sold at a private sale to a realtor, at a price somewhat over $600 an 10:00- 3:00 acre. Later on, in June 1952, an- 12:15 other tract of 26 acres, running from the parkway down to the shore of Hammond Pond itself was sold to other realtors for about $350 per acre. 'his was also a private sale without any hearing or public notice. It should be mentioned that the 8:00 Commission was shown a letter from former Mayor Lockwood. recommending the private use of this property. When the New-ton Board of Aldermen learned of these transactions, it acted 8:30 quickly to zone the area for private residence use, and the real estate promoters have been Noon unable to proceed with their plans to build office buildings or stores upon the property. In fact, the private owners have been paying taxes on land which remains in its natural state and brings them no income. This area contains some of the most cenic and rustic land remaining within the city limits. It is adjacent to Route 9, but lies to the north of the turnpike. This ney, Nancy Michelson, Robert property was sold before the Montgomery, Marilyn Montuori, present Herter administration Janice Munro, Maureen Murray and before Commissioners Mintz Barbara Myers, Nancy Oncley, and Grenough joined the MDC. We read an interesting comment by one of these electronics specialists. He said that pictures in the living room would generally be a lot better if the viewers didn't try to do too much "controlling" themselves. In other words, you should set the focus, contrast and brightness controls once . . then sit back and forget them.

The same holds true for some of the other controls on your set, especially those usually grouped in the back. Some of these are there for your use. Some of these are there for your use. Read the instruction manual that came with your set and become familiar with the horizontal and vertical controls that are there for your use. Other controls should be left to electronics specialists . and tampering with them, like fiddling too much with brightness and contrast controls, can do more harm than good.

Straightening out a TV picture that's gone haswire is our business. We can make those important adjustments install the right parts test for trouble spots accurately. Don't "fiddle" while your set burns . . . just call on us!

Success of GOP in State Due to Nelson's Efforts . Fight in Democratic State Committee Reaching Climax . . .

Republican State Committee Chairman Elmer C. Nelson is a blunt, outspoken man who says exactly what he means and who has made enemies within his own political party as well as outside of it. But it would be a serious blow to GOP hopes for next year, if he were to submit his resignation and return to his automobile

Nelson may have stepped on toes and offended sensitive feelings, but in the process of doing it he also helped to put the Republican party back in business in Massachusetts after a period during which its fortunes were at the lowest ebb in memory in this State.

It would be very easy for the GOP leaders to select a State Committee head who would be much more tactful and diplomatic than Nelson and who could do a far better job of buttering up the men who raise the money and keep the party wheels turning.

Finding someone, however, who could do as effective a job as Nelson at the grass roots level in stimulating the interest of the Republican workers who get out and ring doorbells, in promoting registration drives and in getting out the vote on election day, would be somewhat more difficult.

The Parke Snow store in New ton Centre announces the begin-ning of its annual May Sale, yes-

This famous event, says the store, features values in every department and will give residents of Newton and surround-ing communities a chance to fill their spring and summer needs for the home and family.

According to store officials, the buying staff has been busy for months in preparation for this event, shopping throughout the country and abroad for special values.

In order to serve its customers more effectively, the store has added extra salespeople and has specially geared their operation to handle customer's purchases in the most pleasant and efficient manner. The office staff too, they say, has been reorganized to handle the added volume of charge and budget account business that is expected.

One interesting highlight of the sale is a free gift of import ed sewing needles to be given to every woman in the yardgoods department.

Newton Shares

Newton, like virtually all other communities in Massachusetts, assumes its share of a month-long campaign aimed at more and better care for the mentally ill, and eventual complete solution of the mental health problem.

The toll of mental illness is higher now than ever before, authorities say, and the problem is no less serious here than else-

This, Augustus G. Means, state chairman, pointed out, is the third successive year in which the National Association for Mental Health and its local affiliates have conducted a campaign for funds to carry on the important work. Up to now, he explained, the accent has been on education. The public has had to be made aware that mental illness strikes in more places than all other physical disases combined. The message has been well planted, he believes, and this year, as a result, the financial returns will far exceed those of other years.

The mental Health Fund campaign occupies the entire month of May.

Political Overtones

Nelson was one of the major political architects of the GOP victories in 1952 and 1954. He was one of Governor Herter's top lieutenants in 1952, and he directed the Republican campaign last year.

Perhaps the outstanding reason Gov-ernor Herter and Senator Saltonstall were able to win reelection last November in the face of a nationwide Democratic trend was that the Republicans did a far better organization job in Massachusetts than did the Democrats. That was reflected in the fact that the voting lists showed a sharp drop in the Democratic cities but stood up extremely well in the Republican

The man more responsible than any other one individual for the superior Republican organization that blunted the Democratic swing in Massachusetts was Elmer C. Nelson.

He may not dish out enough verbal soothing syrup to satisfy some of the party's financial overlords, but he spoke the language of the men and women who comprise the GOP's hard core of strength in the State.

Nelson may have brushed off the big-wigs who wanted to tell him how to run the State Committee, but he was never too busy to talk with a town committee worker who called up to voice his views on some party matter

The present conflict in the State Committee runs fairly deep, and it is not certain that even Governor Herter will be able to straighten it out so that Nelson will continue in the chairmanship.

One thing which is certain is that if Nelson does continue on the job, he'll be the boss, and no party fund-raiser will be telling him what to do or whom he can or can't appoint. He'll either run the committee his way, or he won't run it at all. That's how he operates.

Some very powerful Republican figures, men who raise substantial sums of money for the party, would like to get Nelson out. They may succeed. But if they do, the real loser will be the Republican party.

Meanwhile, the fight within the Demo-cratic State Committee is slowly drawing toward its climax, and three weeks from next Saturday the committee members will meet to settle their own conflict.

Democratic State Committee Chairman John C. Carr has indicated that he will seek to block an election of officers. If he succeeds in that maneuver, the committee might just as well go out of busi-

It's difficult to follow Carr's reasoning in view of the agreement made in the Supreme Court, which his attorney signed, but then it has been far from easy to understand why Carr all along has persist-ently blocked efforts to resolve the dispute with an election.

A strange aspect to the situation is that at the outset of the battle most observers assumed that Carr might, have gained reelection to the chairmanship, if he had consented to an election, but it now appears that he has weakened his position by his refusal to do so.

Former Collector of Port William H.
Burke, Jr., unquestionably has won new friends and supporters by the attitude of the friends and supporters by the attitude he has displayed throughout the controversy and his willingness to accept any compromise in order to place the issue before the committee members themselves.

A high school teacher and an athleteic coach, who handles young men of high school age, both members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, differed sharply the other day on whether 18boys and girls should be given the right to vote.

Representative Carter Lee of Quincy. on the basis of his experience as a high school civic teacher for 10 years, expressed the conviction that the 18-year-olds should be permitted to vote, maintaining that they are well fitted to put into practice the lessons of citizenship they have learned.

That contention was disputed by Representative Harrison Chadwick of Winchester who explained that he spoke from experience as a coach of a hockey team of high school age. Chadwick said he interrogated his players when they were in high school and discovered that they felt they should be eligible to vote.

Later, when they were sophomores in college, Chadwick revealed, he interrogated the same youths a second time, and found that they had changed their minds and then declared that as high school pupils they hadn't been mature enough to be entrusted with the privilege of voting.

Chadwick observed that 18-year-olds become very interested in elections at campaign time but then forget all about it until the next elections. He said he could go up and down the Commonwealth and not find 250 18-year-olds who follow the issues in Congress or the State Legis- 10:00

One might well wonder how many mothers and fathers of the 18-year-olds could meet Representative Chadwick's test in that regard.

Senator John F. Kennedy will return to his duties in Washington within the next two weeks, according to Kennedy's Boston secretary, Francis X. Morrissey. For Kennedy it will be the end of a long, hard struggle after a highly serious and dangerous operation last fall, and for a time the youthful Bay Stater lay in the shadow of death.

The Senator's convalescence took much | 10:00-3:00 longer than he and the members of his 10:00-3:00 family had hoped or anticipated, and his 12:15 fight back obviously has not been an easy

Kennedy has not been in Massachusetts since last autumn's campaign, when a controversy started over his failure to give former State Treasurer Foster Furcolo an endorsement that satisfied the Democratic candidate for Senator during a television appearance on which Kennedy appeared with Furcolo and Robert F.

Senator Kennedy left Boston immediately after that telecast and went to a New York hospital to undergo his operation. From New York he was taken to his family's home in Palm Beach to con-

In view of the developments since then Kennedy must have made that television appearance at a great personal sacrifice

Pennsylvania officials are trying to sell a historical 246-year-old inn located near Valley Forge for $1. So far they have been unable to find any purchasers. The reason is that the inn must be moved to a new location, and the cost of shifting would be staggering. Two fireplaces at either end of the inn weigh as much as an average house.

Ex-Convict Thomas Mitchell, acting as his own counsel, convinced a Reno district court judge that he was not the culprit who had tried to batter open an automobile agency safe. Mitchell argued logically that an old pro like himself could have done the job neatly and quietly in not more than 20 minutes.

Out in North Sacramento, Cal., Judge J. Louis Missal, after finding Motorist Adolph J. They must do some pretty heavy heaving out of car windows in California.

What's in a Surname?

The Arms of this surname are: Per fesse, argent (white) and/or (yellow), a pale counterchanged on each piece of the first a tower sable (black). This coat-of-arms is found recorded in general armory of the gentry of England.

David. David is a Biblical name which means in Hebrew "beloved." Many Welshmen bear this surname in honor of their patron saint David of Wales. Many Scots are named Davis as a mark of respect to the early Scottish King David. Englishmen were given this surname as a result of King Edward's I's conquest of Wales.

The surname of Davis has been often recorded in rolls of American history. During the era of the rebellion, there lived a very noted Southerner bearing the name of Davis, His name was Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate States of America. To this day many Southern families honor this man by giving the Davis to their sons as a greatly respected first name

Here is an inexpensive service the whole family enjoys. With additional telephones in the house you all save time and steps in answering the phone - you don't miss calls because you couldn't get there in time - it's easier to hear the ring - you feel more secure at night - and the whole family can talk and listen in on Long Distance calls.

Class of 1985!

It would take a long time to determine who won the bet-but we'd be willing to wager that the lad in the picture winds up owning a Cadillac! We feel so confident because he is starting out like a typical Cadillac owner. Preponderately, Cadillac owners are self-made men.

They just emerge-from everywhere. But they are usually marked, quite early in life, by industry and thrift and the will to succeed.

That's why we say that this wonderful lad-out earning money to make himself self-sufficient—is very likely to wind up owning a Cadillac. Looking at him, as he labors, we estimate the class of 1985!

We hope we are around to deliver his car when the great day arrives-for it's a great thrill to hand out the keys when an owner comes in for his first Cadillac.

It's worth a lot to see the smile on his face and the gleam in his eye as he settles himself behind the wheel -studies the instrument panel to make sure of the controls-and floats away in the direction of home and a family celebration.

Of course, for the lad in the picture, the thrill of that first Cadillac is still a great many years away. But how about you? Is the time coming close for your dream of a Cadillac to come to a happy ending? If so, we'd be happy-indeed-to see you.

This is a wonderful year for owning a new Cadillac -whether it's your first or your fifth or your tenth. Never before has Cadillac performance been so marvelous—its beauty so arresting—its comfort and handling ease so delightful. It is more decisively than ever-the Standard of the World!

Why not come in today-and check this for yourself? We'll give you the keys and a car-for the most revealing hour you ever spent in a motor car.

Funds Will Help Reduce Any Tax Rate Increase

Unofficial Guess-timates See Tax Rise of One Dollar - Perhaps More

Slicing $100,000 from the amount recommended by the mayor, the aldermen voted to take $400,000 from the city's surplus funds Monday night to help blunt the effect of any tax

Mayor Howard Whitmore Jr. asked for a half-million trans fer from surplus in a closed-doors executive session, but the finance committee dropped this by $100,000. No debate on the transfer took place in public, and no explanation of the reasons for the action was given in the finance report by Earle D. Wood.
Only two aldermen opposed the $400.000 transfer. They were William M. Powers and Winfield C. Anderson, who held out for a $350,000 switch from the city's nearly $1,000,000

However, the Board of Assessors is now in the final stages of establishing the 1955 rate, and just how much of an increase is in prospect will depend largely upon whether the city's real estate evaluation rose enough last year to cover steadily rising municipal costs.

The transfer of surplus funds fell far short of the recommendations of Lorenz F. Muther Jr., executive secretary of the Newton Taxpayers' Association, who has long maintained that leaving $250,000 was enough of a bulwark against unexpected drains on the municipal pocketbook.

How Good Are You?

For the fourth year in a row, golfers throughout the nation have been invited to match their skill in handicap play against the best players in the country, and this time the American Red Cross will be a financial beneficiary.

Known as National Golf Day, the event takes place on public and private golf courses under the joint sponsorship of Life Magazine and the Professional Golfers' Association. For the meager registration fee of a dollar, men and women golfers of all ages and abilities can compete with the state of the sta with full handicaps, of course, in the 18-hole tournament. Those posting a better net score than Ed Furgol and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the 1954 national champions, will receive bronze medals indicating their Every cent of the gross proceeds, Life Magazine is underwriting all expenses, will be used for charitable purposes. The Red Cross is a major beneficiary with the bal-ance going to the National Golf Fund, Inc., for research and philanthropic projects related to the pastime of the fairways.

We cannot recall any sporting event in which the total gross receipts have been turned over to more worthwhile causes. By taking part in National Golf Day, you may not make a hole-in-one, or beat Furgol or Zaharias, but you will have the fun of trying, and at the same time lending the Red Cross a helping hand in its many worthwhile services to all humanity.

Remember, you don't have to be a good golfer to be a good sport—make it a date to play on National Golf Day, Saturday, June 4.

Political Overtones

The suggested change in the Constitution, which would permit teen-agers to vote, must be acted upon by another Legislature in either 1957 or 1958, if passed then, would be submitted to the people in 1958.

The reason the political seers were somewhat surprised at the failure of the Democrats to make a more strenuous fight against the four-year term for Massachusetts Governors is that they vantage acc

Republican party from this change. Ordinarily, the Democrats pull out their peak strength for a Presidential election in this State, and the Republicans usually make their best showings in the so-called midterm elections between Presidential campaigns.

There have been exceptions to that rule, of course, but after Calvin Coolidge carried Massachusetts in 1924, no GOP candidate for President was able to do it again until President Eisenhower turned the trick in 1952. In the ensuing period the Bay State was in the Democratic column in the 1928, '32, '36, '40, '44 and '48 Presidential elections.

In the last two decades Democratic candidates for Governor have been victorious only twice in midterm elections. James M. Curley won in 1934 and Paul A. Dever in 1950.

The explanation offered by the experts for this record is that a vast number of Democratic voters turn out every four years for a Presidential election but stay away from the polls for all other contests.

This doesn't necessarily mean that Massachusetts will have a series of Republican Governors, starting with the midterm election in 1958, but it does mean that the percentage will favor the GOP on paper, at least.

Yet, a number of staunch and stead-fast, straight-down-the-line Democrats of the stamp of State Senator John E. Powers of South Boston voted for the amendment because of the expressed belief that the people should be allowed to decide on Enough Democratic members of the State Senate followed the leadership of Powers in voting for the issue to make the difference between approving and defeating the measure. Whether there would have been any public resentment against legislators for preventing this question from being placed before the voters is uncertain, but some Democrats apparently felt there

There is an underlying suspicion that some Republicans recorded themselves for the amendment to allow 18-yearolders to vote because they were afraid to oppose it. What caused their apprehension is puzzling because there is reason to doubt that the teen-agers feel as strongly on this issue as many politicians think they do.

The political pundits believe that a larger portion of the boys and girls between 18 and 21 would vote Democratic rather than Republican. There is no way of proving or disproving that appraisal, of course, and neither is it known what the percentage of the youngsters would turn out for an election, or what segments among them would be more likely to go to

A great many paradoxical situations will arise, if the 18-year-olds are allowed to vote, for that privilege also would carry with it the right to run for public office as well, and some politicians have been pon-dering over the prospect of 18-year-old opponents and teen-age groups campaign ing against them.

That possibility was brought into the debate on the issue, prompting one Demo-cratic Senator to announce that he would rather be defeated by the captain of a high school football team than by a ward heeling politician.

Georgia is now the only State in the Union which permits boys and girls as young as 18 to vote, but unless there is a shift in sentiment, Massachusetts may be the second.

Whether older men and women will adopt the same attitude as a majority of legislators, when this question is submitted to them for their consideration is, of course, something else again.

One of the arguments advanced for the constitutional amendment providing for a four-year term is that a Governor elected for two years doesn't have much time between campaigns.

He gets his program underway during his first year in office and then in his second year must begin thinking of the upcoming election if, indeed, he ever stops thinking about it. It is a fair statement that two years isn't long enough for a Governor to show what he can do or to accomplish any effective

The objection offered by some opponents to the move is that a Governor might be able to entrench himself in office to such an extent that he would be almost unbeatable at the end of eight years.

That contention doesn't stand up too well in the face of past experience. It would be a rugged politician, indeed, who 10:00-3:30 10:00-3:30 would want to serve more than eight years as Governor in view of the strains and stresses that go with the position, and it would be an exceptional one who could satisfy the people for that length of time.

Comparatively few Governors have sought a third two-year term, and even fewer have achieved it, when they did seek it. The likelihood of their remaining in office 12 years is rather remote.

POLITICAL NOTE-When the City Hall in Northfield, N. J., was badly in need of painting, the Mayor and City Councillors in the community talked over the problem and then did the job themselves to avoid an increase in the tax rate.

RANDOM CLIPPINGS

The Board of Education in Rochester, N. Y., after a six-year survey, reports that N. Y., after a six-year survey, reports that the kind of teacher the pupils like best is one who "knows how to teach." That qualification was listed as tops by 31 percent of the pupils interrogated. "Friendliness" ranked second with 25 percent and "strictness" was third with 22 percent Somehody must have been looking 10:00-3:00 cent. Somebody must have been looking 10:00-3:00 over the shoulders of the students, as they answered that quiz.

11:00-4:00 A Brown University professor points 12:15 out that in some nations tea is drunk in the belief that it is stimulating and in other countries because it is thought to be soothing to the nerves. Dr. Harold Schlosberg told the Eastern Psychological Association that both theories are actually correct.

Truck driver John Sanford, Jr., was arrested for going 50 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone in Marlboro, Md., then had a second charge of impeding traffic lodged against him because he refused to go more than 30 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone on his way to the police station.

After residents of Hutton Gate in England protested that the ancient gas lamps on their railroad station were too oldfashioned, the lamps were replaced last week-with oil lamps.

British administrations in East Africa are taking drastic measures to prevent the extinction of the giraffe. It seems that the natives are killing the animals in order to get their tails as good luck charms. When a ban was placed on killing the animals, the natives claimed that they came upon the giraffes after they had been hit by trains. Now the engineers of trains are required to stop and cut off the tail of any giraffe thehy kill and deliver the tail to the station master at the next stop.

Michael Korzen complained in a Chicago divorce court that his wife's weight had increased from 127 to 190 pounds. He demanded that she reduce to 125 pounds or be divorced. After the judge advised him that he was asking too much, Korzen agreed to take back his wife if she would get down to 140 pounds.

Manager Kennealy said that of the 753 persons who are col-lecting benefits at the Newton Office, 305 are in the age bracket above 45. The average weekly unemployment check paid to each is $24.80.

The figures were released in connection with Senior Citizens Week which is being observed throughout the State this week as a result of a pro-clamation by Governor Herter.

The purpose of Senior Citizen's Week is to draw public attention to the problems of older workers. One of the most important of these problems is a job.

The manager said that the Senior Citizens is acute here as it is elsewhere in the State. This is in spite of the fact that national survey shows that older workers have fewer disabling injuries on the job, are absent from work less and can produce as well or better than

I'm jealous . . .

Last week my floor pal, Mr. '53 DeSoto, had the boss put an ad in the paper for him, what do you know a lovely man from the courthouse came in and took him away. Now the son-of-er-gun is going to take a trip to California! Am I jealous? Let me tell you about myself. I am the most glamorous '53 Plymouth hardtop in New England. I am very stylishly dressed in a coat of baby blue with white shoes and an ivory topper, my pal DeSoto had a nice radio but you should hear the beautiful strains of music that come from my Silvertone Philco and my heater, you can cook eggs on it, it keeps me so warm or you can turn a button and keep things cool in the hot weather. I am really just a youngster and have not been around very much and I'd like to hook up with some nice lady as my traveling companion and see some of our beautiful country. I have a lovely motor and all the other fine features that will make life easy for the both of us. You'll find that we travel very economic ally together and it won't cost you too much to take me home. What do you say we go for a trial spin? I can be seen now at . . .

The Newton Civic Associa-the city election November 8, Carrol J. Hoffman, president of the city's first non-partisan city-wide political organization, announced at the annual meeting of the Board of Directors held at the Beethoven School,

Wednesday evening, May 18, As in the city election of 1953, the candidates will be endorsed after interview and secret bal-lot of the board of directors representing each ward of the City of Newton.

Newton Civic Association Plans to Endorse Candidates . .

Newton's legislators voted in a bloc on the three proposed amendments to the State Constitution.

They supported the move for a four-year term for Massachusetts Governors and other State Constitutional officers and opposed the graduated income tax and lowering the voting age from 21 to 18.

Only once were the five Newton lawmakers-Senator Richard H. Lee and Representatives Irene K. Thresher, George E. Rawson, Donald L. Gibbs and Arthur G. Heaney-on the winning side. That was in the contest over the four-year term issue.

On all three issues they voted as did a majority of the Republican House and Senate members.

Political Overtones

(Continued from Page 1) Under the direction of Carrol J. Hoffman, its president, the Newton Civic Association is setting up extensive machinery for the endorsement of candidates in next autumn's municipal election. Hoffman outlined the procedure that will be followed at the annual meeting of the association's board of directors in the Beethoven School last week.

As was the case two years ago, the candidates will be selected for endorsement by the board of directors after the office-seekers have been interviewed and given an opportunity to present their

Hoffman, however, revealed plans for forming ward and neighborhood groups which will comprise a grass roots or-ganization at the base of the civic association's operations.

He announced the appointment of a captain for each of the city's wards. The captains will invite the office-seekers in their districts to discuss their qualifications with the association members in their areas.

Named as captains were Bertram H. Loewenberg in Ward 1, Dr. Allen Barrow in Ward 2, Mrs. Melvin Taymor in Ward 3, Herbert N. McGill in Ward 5, Clair Pontius and Harold Piper in Ward 5, Ernest Dietz in Ward 7 and Edward J. Pease

Hoffman predicted that the local meetings will bring the Civic Association members closer to the candidates. He explained that the members in each ward will make recommendations to the board

He said that in the future, when an alderman resigns, he expects that a captain will call a meeting of the precinct chairmen and other directors in his ward, consider possible successors and then make a recommendation to the Board of Aldermen.

It now appears that the move to give initial passage to a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a graduated State income tax may be smothered under a maze of legislative red tape.
At least that's what opponents of that scheme hope, and there seems to be a good chance they will be successful in that objective.

Members of the Legislature this week were treated to a little sleight-of-hand wizardry on the income tax measure. They resumed their joint convention expecting to vote on it, and it wasn't there to be voted upon.

This is what happened and how the income tax measure came to do its disappearing act.

Last week a joint convention of the two branches of the Legislature approved three different constitutional amend-ments, one providing a four-year term for Governors, a second lowering the voting age from 21 to 18, a third clearing the way for the adoption of a graduated income tax a few years from now.

Under the normal procedure, the income tax measure, after being voted to a third reading, was referred to a committee to pass on its imperfections. Instead of giving the bill a perfunctory scrutiny and reporting it back, the com-mittee held it and is now in the process or revising it.

So on Monday the proposal was still in committee and was not before the convention. A fourth-fifths vote of the members of both the House and Senate would have been needed to get the measure out of committee and onto the convention

Both a Senate and House committee, each comprised of three members, were appointed to iron out any legal wrinkles from the proposals. But instead of a little light retouching that was expected, the Senate group comprised of Senators Charles J. Innes of the Back Bay, John Adams of Andover and William D. Fleming of Worcester is doing a complete over-

It would be more correct, perhaps, to report that Innes and Adams, the two Republicans, are amending the amendment. Fleming is a Democrat with only a minor voice in the committee proceed-

Innes and Adams are not divulging exactly what they intend to do, but it's apparent that they will either change the measure drastically or write an entirely new one to report back to the full convention.

The joint session of the two legislative chambers, of course, can overturn the committee report and substitute the origianl measure, but if it did so the bill same committee and would be on the equivalent of a legislative merry-goround.

Authorities on constitutional law declare that the Legislature cannot prorogue at the end of its 1955 session without taking some action of all three suggested amendments to the Constitution and that the measure can't be left suspended in midair.

What will happen if the tax issue should be shuttled back and forth between the committee and the full convention remains to be seen, but it might help some of the legislators, who voted for the measure and are now uncertain as to the wisdom of their action, to get off the hook.

When the issue was given preliminary approval just before dawn on Tuesday morning of last week, it received 145 yotes, just five more than the number needed for its adoption. If six legislators changed their minds or took a walk, the bill would be killed-unless some of the members who were absent on the original rollcall made up the difference.

An ironical aspect to the situation is that a majority of the Democratic legislators are opposed to the four-year term for Governors, and most of the Republicans are against giving the 18-year-old ers the right to vote. All but a handful of the GOP members were recorded in opposition to the graduated income tax.

Practically no one would be unhappy if all three issues were sidetracked until next year, but it is difficult to see how such a solution could be brought about.

There has been some speculation as Governor Herter included the graduated income tax issue in his call for a joint convention of the two legislative chamber.

The answer is that his legal advisers interpreted the law as meaning that he was required to do so and had no discretion in the matter.

Published reports that Governor Herter indicated at a conference in his home last week that he will not run for a third

The fact is that the Governor had an early morning breakfast meeting at his home with Lieutenant Governor Sumner G. Whittier, Attorney Governor Sumner G. Whittier, Attorney General George Mr. Stockdale's trip to Alaska. ever, did Herter intimate whether he would or wouldn't be a candidate in 1956. That topic was never brought up and never mentioned.

One of his listeners might have inter-ted the Governor's action in holding these programs possible.

By Betsy Meirick, 7th Grade preted the Governor's action in holding such a policy conference as meaning that he doesn't intend to run again, but that is a little far-fetched.

It is evident that the Governor is troubled by the friction within the Re-publican State Committee. That clash and the current Book Drive. could be settled quickly, if Herter were to ask Eimer Nelson to step out.

As a matter of fact, Nelson probably will insist on getting out, if he becomes convinced that Herter will not be a candidate for realection resident.

didate for reelection next year.

But if he does, the Republican party will lose the best political organizer it has had in modern times and the man who has been able to rally most effectively the has been able to rally most effectively the Republican workers in the towns and

This observer has repeatedly expressed the conviction that Governor Herter will not run again in 1956, if the decision is his alone to make. He has had the glamour and glory of winning two gubernatorial elections, and he has known the troubles and headaches that go with the office. He can go out of office the undefeated and champion vote-getter of his party.

It would be difficult for him to refuse however, if the President Eisenhower, however, if the latter were to ask him to head the Republican State ticket in Massachusetts next year, and that is why the door is not closed entirely to the possibility of his running.

When New York detectives, while quizzing a burglary suspect, asked him his occupation, they received an unexpectedly blunt answer. "I steal," he answered. "I don't get much, but it's a living." blunt answer.

After receiving the National Safety Council Award for 20 years of perfect driving, Alfred Bean, 50, of Franklin, Vt., left a testimonial luncheon staged in his honor and walked across the street to a courthouse, where he was found guilty of drunken driving 20 days earlier.

Nabbed by Meriden, Conn., police for peeping into the windows of homes on Gilbert road, Gordon A. Sanderson had a ready explanation for his activity. He informed the amazed officers that he was contemplating moving into the district and wanted to make certain his prospective neighbors were "quiet, decent people."

What's In A Surname? THE SURNAME OF FIELDING

The armorial bearing of this surname is: Argent (white) a fesse azure (blue) three lozenges or (yellow). This achievement was first mentioned in rolls of arms pertaining to the landed gentry of the county of Warwick, England.

The name itself is of Anglo-Saxon origin. This name was added to the Christian name of the early bearer to denote that he is a field-dweller. The derivation of Fielding is from the "feld" (pasture) and the Saxon "ing" (inhabitant of).

Since this surname is Anglo-Saxon in origin, it is safe to ssume that the early bearers of this name came over to England from their German homeland of Saxony. Before the Conquest of 1066 A.D. the people of England were ruled by the Germanic Anglo-Saxons. After this date, the people of this origin were deprived of their former power by the French-Norse from Normandy. Therefore, this surname might be classified as that of early or eld English origin, since Chaucer made famous the tongue of Saxon-English in his famous Canterbury Tales.

During the 18th century there lived in England, a very famous dramatist bearing this surname. This man was baptised with the name Henry Fielding in 1707. Not only was this Fielding noted as a dramatist, but also as a revelist. He made famous the name of his native Somersetshire in his classical writing of the time.

New Fertilizer Available Here

The Western Coal & Ice Co. of Dorchester, is an authorized dealer for "Liquilawn"...the nation-wide lawn culture spraying service...is offering home owners in Newton a new fertilizer service . . . because of the seasonal nature of the fuel oil business the Western Oil is using their equipment and personnel to spray fertiliz-er on lawns. Interested home owners can now get a series of fertilizer applications throughout the growing season for less than it would cost them to do the job themselves.

"Liquilawn" fertilizer is an improved version of a trie and tested product introduced some years ago. It is what the norti-culturists call a "total" fertiliz er - combining nitrogen, phos phorus and potash in scientific proportions especially designed for lawns and garden (12-8-4).

The plant food is furnished in concentrated form and mixed with water before being sprayed on the lawn. In con-trast with other types of fertilizers "Liquilawn" is clear, has no odor, dissovles entirely in water without residue, when applied to lawn does not wash or blow away.

Liquid fertilizer has several outstanding advantages . . . it is absorbed through the leaves as well as the roots and does not need a rainfall to bring it into solution . . . Whatever fer-tilizer does not land on the blade of the grass it is soaked up by the soil into the root system. And . . . it is almost impossible to harm an existing lawn by incorrect application

... burning out of lawn which may occur when dry fertilizer is applied is less common with "Liquilawn" fertilizer concen-trate. Liquilawn contains "ab-sorb-quick" which is a wetting agent that accelerates the rate of absorption.

Empathy can be developed and improved by practice, by playing the part of another person. Imagine you are someone else facing a certain situation. In the first place you have to find out what he is like. You have to realize that he may feel and act differently from you and that his feelings are just as important as yours.
